Indian Fraudster Dr. Mahendra Amin Accused of Literally Force Sterilizing, Hysterectomizing Women at Georgia ICE Facility Not Board-Certified OB-GYN

The purpose of board-certifying doctors in specialty fields is to give not only confidence to patients that they know what they're doing, but also to regulate the training they receive. Yet this doesn't stop spinsters from engaging in literal crimes. Such was the case at a detention facility in Georgia for immigrants where it was alleged by a whistleblower that several women were forced into procedures they didn't want or understand. They were done by an immigrant doctor from India who had previously settled fraud cases with the Feds (Daily Caller):

> Amin and other doctors who worked at a Georgia hospital he part-owned agreed to a $520,000 settlement with federal prosecutors in 2015 after he had been charged with Medicare and Medicaid fraud.

The fact that this street-shitter is in our country is already infuriating, but he's now stealing from taxpayers and getting away with it. In any event, the report about the ICE facility was slightly over the top, as the AP explains:

> The AP's review did not find evidence of mass hysterectomies as alleged in a widely shared complaint filed by a nurse at the detention center. Dawn Wooten alleged that many detained women were taken to an unnamed gynecologist whom she labeled the "uterus collector" because of how many hysterectomies he performed.

I have long supported the deportation of even legal non-White immigrants and the restriction of immigration to White Europeans. If you look at demographics in America by age, Hispanics are the youngest group with the average age being something like 11 and the average age of Whites something like 58. Like with blacks having abortions, I really can't bring myself to care about this. If this means less anchor babies and therefore less Mollie Tibbets' cases, whatever. So be it.
